Session: Fall/Winter 09/03/2019 - 04/09/2020

Time: Tuesdays 1:30-5:30 Classroom: 3.645 Office: EV 4-775

Calendar Description:

The purpose of this studio course is to provide a framework within which students pursue their photographic practice at an intermediate level. Students are encouraged to explore concepts and technical components in a long-term project. They develop a photographic language which is specific to their own practice and learn from the work of other contemporary artists. The final portfolio is content-driven and expresses personal artistic vision.

Prerequisite: PHOT 210 and ARTH 267 and enrolment in the Major or Minor in Photography; or written permission of the program director.

NOTE: Students are required to bear the cost of film stock, processing, printing, and other materials.

NOTE: Each student's work is evaluated by a jury of Photography faculty at the end of each term.

Course Description:

This course is an intermediate studio course in image-based art practice that aims to expand and nuance the scope of each student's developing art practice. It is a course that relies on the self-determination of each student in that it demands a commitment to self-directed research and reflection. The emphasis of this course is more conceptual than technical, as foundational training in various equipment and camera technologies is a requirement for enrollment. Lectures and working periods prioritize discussion of contemporary art issues, criticisms as well as display formats and various approaches to printing and installation. Students are required to produce a great deal of material work in this course as well as be able and willing to engage autonomously in their work production and research outside of class time.

Course Structure:

Lectures during the fall semester of this course will focus on philosophies, histories and critical theories about photography and lens based art. In addition, various contemporary artists grappling with image formats will be introduced.

The second half (Winter semester) will center on applying this knowledge in order to effectively resolve (visually, conceptually, linguistically) presented work and ultimately the student's final portfolio.

Readings will be chosen by the Instructor bi-weekly or monthly, based on their relevancy to classroom dialogues, student interests and lecture topics. Students are asked to engage with these readings by taking the time to read them and by making connections with the issues raised in their own research and class participation.

Gallery visits are permitted and will be decided based on class interest. The same logic will apply for possible Visiting Artist presentations.

Learning Outcomes:

- 1) Assignments and portfolio display a coherence between artistic intention and aesthetic choices. Technical proficiency becomes a given.
- 2) The beginnings of a self-determined artistic practice will be established. (e.g. A method or routine where making becomes more habitual or integrated into working life.)
- 3) The choices involved in formalizing work for display no longer seem secondary or separate from the conceptual idea of the project itself.
- 4) The importance of text, theory, philosophy and art history as key elements of any artistic practice is understood. There is no neutral artwork that does not take on multiple positions, political or otherwise. There is no ahistorical image.
- 5) The student possesses a curated and massively thought-out body of work from which to work from moving into either professionalization or other modes of continued research.

Grading

The following is in accordance with Concordia University's grading standards:

A Outstanding - Work surpasses expectations. Highly resolved conceptually and technically.

B Very Good - Above average completion and participation.

A note on “Participation” (20%)

Participation is mandatory and essential to this course. All forms of participation are equally valued. These include reading the assigned texts, listening attentively, asking questions or offering generative feedback, reflecting on your individual projects in your artist statements and project proposals and skill sharing among your peers.

Please note that phone use will be noted and I ask that you make a consistent effort to disengage from your phone and tablet screens during lectures. There will be breaks during class time and I will try to notify the class in advance when those breaks will occur. If excessive phone use is observed, participation marks will be deducted.

Student Responsibilities and Requirements

Deadlines – Compliance with assignment deadlines is absolutely necessary in order to successfully pass this course and graduate through the sequential and progressive nature of the studio assignments.

Critiques – End of semester critiques are equivalent to examinations and nonattendance has severe consequences for your grade. Please provide medical notes or contact me directly well in advance if you need to make alternative arrangements.

Attendance – Attendance is mandatory. Repeated late arrivals or more than three non-excused absences can result in a 0 mark for your participation grade, or failure of the course. More than half an hour late constitutes an absence.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have an issue preventing you from being punctual. If you are sick or require an absence, please write to me in advance when possible.

Safety and Safer Space – Instances of oppressive, derogatory, disrespectful or otherwise harmful language, behavior or practices will be acknowledged and not accepted. (This can include but is not limited to: racism, transphobia, homophobia, sexism, misogyny, classism, ableism, voyeurism and cultural appropriation.) As an instructor, it is important to me that I facilitate a learning environment that strives for safer space in a continual manner and on-going basis. The impossibility of guaranteed safety in public, institutionalized space is true but I make a commitment to confront and address instances and issues of harm and/or un-safety for this class collectively and for individual students. For any individual concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me privately via my email address pascha.macpherson@concordia.ca

- Please note Student Info Sheet

Fees

The Chemical Purchase Plan fee is mandatory (known as “Photo Fees”). It is 160$ for the two-semester. Payments can be made online through the Concordia Bookstore website. Receipts must be returned to me before Week 4 of this course. If fees are not paid, your use of the darkroom and rental services will be suspended. The Photo Depot tracks paid and unpaid fees very closely.

COURSE MATERIALS

Required Equipment and Supplies

- 35 mm camera or medium format camera
- colour photo paper

Students are expected to incur the cost of film processing and photographic paper printing. Students are asked to provide their own camera. The estimated cost of this course for the full year is $1200-$2000 depending on materials used. Average cost of a used 35mm film camera is $80-$120. There are several used camera supply stores in Montreal as well as exploring craigslist, Kijiji etc...
